THE LION'S DEN

Presented by the
Senior Class of 1968
East Lamar High School
Pattonville, Texas

Foreword

Four years are spent in high school. During these years a student sets his goals for life and begins working toward them. Through varied opportunities students at East Lamar are encouraged to find their most outstanding qualities and develop them. Not only does the individual benefit from his attempts but the standards of the entire student body are raised by each worthwhile contribution. East Lamar's quality depends on the efforts of the individual. The multiple of these single efforts makes East Lamar great. It is our purpose on the following pages to show these individuals and groups "seeking greatness" for themselves and for East Lamar as a whole.

THE STAFF
Barbara Holt, Editor

Dedication

After having been associated with East Lamar Schools for the past twelve years, we, the Senior Class of 1967-1968, feel that one person has been outstanding in his leadership of us. Besides being a fine superintendent and teacher, he is a true friend to each student who attends East Lamar. Because of all the outstanding qualities of this man, we do hereby dedicate the 1967-1968 Lions' Den to:

Superintendent Lleo B. Dodd

Superintendent's Message

My love and admiration for the people of East Lamar School District and their fine children cannot be fully expressed in this message.

The success of any school is made up of many ingredients. Among them are the professional staff, non-professional staff, and school board, and last but not least, the student body. East Lamar has been very fortunate in having an outstanding teaching staff for many years. The school board, non-professional staff, and people of the community are to be commended for their invaluable contributions to the success of this school.

However, if I had to pinpoint just one ingredient that has been most helpful to me, as an administrator, it would be the caliber of the student we have enjoyed here at East Lamar. Their ambitions and aspirations have been a challenge, not only to me, but to every person who has been privileged to work in this fine school. And now as you go forward to meet your destiny, my advice is that you meet your responsibility as a citizen with the same courage and determination that you have displayed here at East Lamar.

If I can be of any further service to you after graduation, please give me the opportunity.

Your friend and superintendent,

Llew B. Dodd
